Hollywood Reporter

By Mike Connolly

This column is being written by Mike Connolly's staff while he is on vacation.

Dear Mike: I'm a loyal Lana Turner fan and I thought her career was in high gear starting with "Imitation of Life" a couple years ago. Now what's happened? — Phil Withers, Augusta, Ga.

Dear Phil: Lana Turner will always be a star and therefore she waits until she finds just the right movie to do. Right now there are two scripts under consideration for her. Last week I mentioned "All Cats Aren't Gray" which would get a title change and a new property for her is "There Must be a Pony," about a movie star's mother.

Dr. Mr. Connolly: What happens to actors and actresses when they stop working either temporarily or for long stretches at a time? Two I have in mind are Jane Powell and Kathryn Grayson. — Betsy Wagner, Bristol, Conn.

Dear Miss Wagner: It so happens Jane and Kathryn used to work for Metro and are still great friends. This summer they both starred in musicals on the road and it looks like Jane is headed for B'way. Don't feel sorry for them in any event. For instance, Kathryn just sold her rambling estate for more than double her purchase price!

Dear Mike: Lately it seems I read about some actor who does a movie or two and then all of a sudden he's his own producer wheeling and dealing like the best of them. How does this happen? The movie stars of years ago weren't like that.—Mrs. L. A. Gordon, Riverside, Calif.

Dear Mrs. Gordon: Don't like correcting you but have you forgotten Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin or Douglas Fairbanks? They were their own producers. Today an actor can get a running part in a TV series, save his money and in two or three years go into that production you talk about. As an example, Chuck Connors has a small percentage of his latest movie, "Flipper," and he's also working in his second series. He'll be a big star in a very short time. Chuck will be bidding with the best of them.

Dear Mike: I've just seen "Cleopatra" and am I mistaken or did Liz get fat and thin and fat again during the movie?—Mrs. Terry Vickers, Adrian, Mich.

Dear Mrs. Vickers: Liz can put weight on and take it off almost by wishing it so. She just lost 10 pounds getting ready to do her next movie, "The Sandpiper."

Dear Mike: I've missed seeing a charming actress by the name of Diane Baker. What ever happened to her?—Marie Kirk, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Dear Miss Kirk: You must have missed seeing Diane in "Nine Hours to Rama," which took her to India for almost a year. Lately she's been right here in Hollywood making two movies, one opposite Paul Newman and the other with Joan Crawford called "Strait-Jacket."

Dear Mike Connolly: I watch old movies on TV and enjoy them just as much as I did the first time. The trend in movies doesn't seem to pair actors like they used to. How come? Gardner Roth, Lincoln, Nebr.

Dear Mr. Roth: Guess you'll have to be satisfied with old movies. Although Alan Ladd just signed his former co-star, Veronica Lake, to join him in his next movie, "Box 13." In other cases, perhaps actors these days are afraid of getting typed or in a rut.

Dear Mike: Did Roddy McDowall really take all those pictures of the people involved with "Cleopatra"?—Dorothy Robertson, Monroe, La.

Dear Dorothy: Yes, I'm afraid he did. Sorry if it disillusioned you. On the other hand, Roddy has turned down fabulous amounts of money for the pictures he took of Sybil Burton with her children. I think he learned his lesson after releasing those semi-nude pictures of Miss Taylor.

Peninsula Montessori School Open

Montessori de Palos Verdes, a private school specializing in teaching children from three to seven, will open for classes in September. The school, founded by Lawrence W. Werner Jr. of Palos Verdes Estates, teaches according to the famed philosophy of Dr. Maria Montessori, an Italian physician-educator, developed about 50 years ago.

THE MONTESSORI system is based on the premise that a child is limited only by his attitude in taking full measure of his potential.

"We believe," says Werner, "that by stimulating the child's natural curiosity and encouraging his initiative, the Montessori System will enable him to develop a positive and eager attitude toward learning. He will carry that attitude throughout his life."

THE SCHOOL'S approach is non-competitive, and each child will be free to go from project to project as rapidly as he is able to grasp the subject matter. The Palos Verdes school was formed through the guidance of the American Montessori Society. Classes will be conducted by teachers trained and experienced in the methods of the system.

Classes will be held from 8:45 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. each day, with instruction in reading, writing, arithmetic, foreign language, music, plant and animal life, and social studies. The creative arts and science classes are also planned. Parents interested in the new school may obtain additional information by calling the school at 377-6660.

Handicapped Youths Enjoy Camp Outing

Four Torrance teenagers will be among 152 handicapped boys and girls 14 to 17 years of age who will go camping Aug. 19 to 31 through the aid of the Crippled Children's Society.

Phillip Brown, 14, of 813 W. 229th St., and Sandra Fleetwood, 12, of 231 W. 220th St., will travel to Camp Joan Mier, just beyond Malibu, while Lawrence Haizlip, 14, of 3333 W. 175th St., and Norma Jean Root, 17, of 2707-B Sonoma St., will enjoy Camp Paivika near Crestline.

The youths will participate in daily swimming, horseback riding, archery practice, nature study and arts and crafts, plus frequent outings and impromptu carnivals and games.

Camping is provided free by the Crippled Children's Society through public contributions to its annual direct-mail campaign for funds.

Newly completed additional facilities raised the number of children and young adults served in campships this year from 660 to 760.
